$19.95

THE AMERICAN CATHOLIC WHO'S WHO for 1976-77 is the first to be published since the 1972-73 edition. It provides answers to questions about people — questions asked by journalists, students, librarians, researchers, business leaders, government officials and many others.

This expanded, updated edition includes nearly 5,300 biographies of men and women whose achievements and positions in many fields make them noteworthy.

This NC Bicentennial edition includes 25 pictures and biographies of famous Catholics from America's past, among them Saint Elizabeth Seton, Archbishop John Ireland, Kateri Tekakwitha, Thomas Merton, Flannery O'Connor and Charles Randolph Uncles.

The American Catholic Who's Who is published by the National Catholic (NC) News Service, a Division of the United States Catholic Conference. NC News Service is a financially independent news agency

PREFACE

There is no reason to think that our Lord is interested in the kinds of distinctions made by the editors of this book, or that heavenly inscriptions will be drawn from earthly print. But there is abundant reason to know that the brief biographies that appear in The American Catholic Who's Who are important to librarians, researchers, journalists, historians and many others. Heavy advance orders for this twenty-first volume reaffirm the value of this series.

We're calling this volume the Bicentennial Edition, marking the 200th anniversary of the independence of the United States of America. The influence for good on the part of individual Roman Catholics and their Church was very much in evidence not only at the time of the colonial revolution, but long before that in parts of the North American continent that only later were embraced by the national boundaries.

In our own "Spirit of '76" we begin each letter of the alphabet—with the exception of X, which has produced no listings in this edition—with a short biographical sketch of a prominent American Catholic of the past. These "alphabet sketches" cover four centuries. They present a remarkable cross-section: laity and clergy; male and female; Catholic born and convert; native born and immigrant; whites, blacks, Indians; cardinals, bishops, priests, nuns, brothers; scientists, writers, sports figures, political leaders; Catholics from the east coast and points west.

The brilliant selections of twenty-five Catholics of the past were made by Father J. Joseph Gallagher, whose warm friendship is important to me but who is known to the world as the translation editor of The Documents of Vatican II and as a distinguished writer and poet. He is a former archivist of the Archdiocese of Baltimore and he teaches now at St. Mary's University and Seminary in Baltimore.

This Volume 21 is the first edition of The American Catholic Who's Who to be published by the National Catholic News Service. There has been a longer interval than there should have been between the last biennial edition and this one. It does not require a mathematician to establish that Volume 20 for 1972-73 should have been followed by an edition for 1974-75. But there was no such edition, because of delays resulting from a change in publishers. Volume 20 was published by NC Publications, Incorporated. Despite the similarity of names, that organization, which no longer exists, was not a part of NC News Service.

So, NC News Service offers an enlarged Volume 21 for 1976-77. It includes about 2,000 biographies that did not appear in the previous edition. After eliminating some biographical sketches that appeared previously, we offer in this edition nearly 5,300 individual sketches compared to about 4,500 in Volume 20. We expect to increase the number further in the next biennial edition, with a continuing emphasis on enlarging the number of women and members of minority groups.

NC News Service is a financially self-supporting and editorially independent division of the United States Catholic Conference. Its principal function is to turn out a daily news service, which is speeded by leased wire throughout the continental United States and to Rome. Printed copies of the wire report are airmailed daily to newspapers, news agencies, television stations and radio stations in forty countries.

I'm grateful for the encouragement given to the production of this edition of The American Catholic Who's Who by Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati, who is president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and of its secretariat, the United States Catholic Conference; and by Bishop James S. Rausch, general secretary of both conferences.

Important support has come also from Robert B. Beusse, secretary of communication for the U.S. Catholic Conference, and from many others.

The book would never have advanced beyond several cartons of notes and paraphernalia left over from the previous edition if it had not been for the energy and enthusiasm of the copy editor, Susan Culbertson. She received important help from Rita Hayward, NC News Service librarian, and from a temporary American Catholic Who's Who staff of proofreaders, editors and typists that included Helen Arms, William A. Bartoul, Harry Dudley, Edward J. Horan, Johnnie Mosby, Mary Pat O'Brien, Donald Reed, Michael Seibold and Marlene Winter.

David Gibson, NC News Service research director and editor of Origins, has been closely identified with this volume from its beginning. So have Thomas N. Lorsung, NC picture editor; Susan Ware, NC staff artist, and Elsie Robertson of NC production.

There are many others, of course, who have had a hand in getting this book into your hands. In one sense this is largely a book of names, but even so I cannot list everybody whose help and inspiration have gone into it. My gratitude is widespread.

My hope now is that American Catholic Who's Who will succeed in its varied missions, one of which is to help men and women of today know more about each other in order, perhaps, to understand each other more successfully. That kind of success can lead to a fuller understanding that each of us owes the fact of our existence to God, and that part of our responsibility is to take a useful place in God's world. This understanding can help us to recognize the universality of the love of God and the demands that are made on each of us to live as though we really believe in more than ourselves.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF CATHOLIC BISHOPS (NCCB)

UNITED STATES CATHOLIC CONFERENCE (USCC)

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops is a canonical entity. It gives the bishops of the United States an opportunity to exchange views and insights and to work together in the exercise of their pastoral office.

The United States Catholic Conference is a civil entity of the nation's bishops. It provides a secretariat, an organizational structure, to carry out programs of the bishops.

Permanent offices of both conferences are at 1312 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

The officers for both conferences are:

Officers

President ..... Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin
Vice President ..... John Cardinal Carberry
Treasurer ..... Archbishop Thomas A. Donnellan
Secretary ..... Bishop James S. Rausch

ALPHONSA, MOTHER: ROSE HAWTHORNE LATHROP was the youngest daughter of novelist Nathaniel Hawthorne and his wife Sophia (Peabody). Born in Lenox, Mass., on May 20, 1851, she spent her childhood years in England and Italy and returned to the U.S. in 1860. Eleven years later she married George Parsons Lathrop in London, and with him authored a history of the Visitation Convent in Georgetown entitled A Story of Courage. Received into the Catholic Church in 1891, she developed a special interest in cancer patients. After her husband's death she took vows as a Dominican nun (1900) and founded the Servants of Relief for Incurable Cancer. As Mother Alphonsa she presided over the expansion of this sisterhood, centered at Hawthorne, N.Y. There she died on July 9, 1926. In her earlier years she wrote poems and short stories for such journals as Scribner's and Harper's Bazaar, and published memoirs of her father.

BROWNSON, ORESTES AUGUSTUS, preacher, journalist, editor and philosopher, was born in Stockbridge, Vt., on September 16, 1803, and died in Detroit on April 17, 1876. After vigorous years as a Presbyterian convert, a Universalist preacher, a Unitarian minister (and associate of Ralph Waldo Emerson), and an evangelist for his own "Church of the Future," he became a Catholic in his forty-second year. Especially through his Brownson's Quarterly Review he developed into one of the leading Catholic laymen of the 19th century. Author of The American Republic (1866) and Civil and Religious Freedom (1864), he was energetically concerned with social reform and with the relationship between Christianity and civilization. He is buried in the campus chapel at the University of Notre Dame.

CARROLL, CHARLES of Carrollton, Signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born into the wealthiest family in the American colonies at Annapolis, Md., on September 19, 1737. After sixteen years of European education, he returned to Maryland in 1768, where he took a notable part in pre-Revolutionary debates. He became a national figure when the Continental Congress sent him on a diplomatic mission to Canada. Elected to Congress from Maryland on July 4, 1776, he signed the Delcaration of Independence on August 2. In 1789 he became one of the first U.S. Senators. He later served as president of the American Colonization Society, which founded Liberia. On July 4, 1828 he laid the cornerstone of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Outliving all the other Signers, he died in Baltimore on November 14, 1832, and is buried in the Carroll family chapel near Ellicott City, Md. His cousin Daniel Carroll signed the U.S. Constitution. Daniel's brother John was the founding bishop of the U.S. hierarchy and the father of the nation's first Catholic University (Georgetown) and its first seminary (St. Mary's, Baltimore) both of which opened in 1791.

DOOLEY, THOMAS, doctor and humanitarian, was born in St. Louis, Mo., on January 17, 1927. After graduation from the University of Notre Dame and St. Louis University Medical School, he served for two years as a U.S. Naval doctor in Indo-China. With three other former medical corpsmen, he then set about establishing a medical mission in Laos. This work led to the founding of MEDICO for medical care in remote areas of Asia. Within five years he oversaw the erection of seven hospitals in four Asian nations and personally raised nearly two million dollars for MEDICO. He died of cancer in New York City the day after his 34th birthday. The U.S. Congress authorized the striking of a medal in honor of this young humanitarian, who described his adventures in four books, including Deliver Us From Evil (1956) and Dr. Tom Dooley, My Story (1960).

ENGLAND, JOHN, first and trail-blazing bishop of Charleston, S.C., was born in Cork, Ireland on September 23, 1786. He studied law briefly before entering the seminary. Ordained in his native city in 1808, he was notified in August, 1820, of his appointment to Charleston, a diocese which then included both Carolinas and Georgia. There he founded the first U.S. Catholic newspaper, The United States Catholic Miscellany (1822). Local slaveowners blocked his efforts to operate a school for Negroes. On the national scene it was largely through his persistence that the influential Councils of Baltimore were finally initiated in 1829. Famous as an author and an orator, he became the first Catholic clergyman ever invited to address the U.S. Congress (1826). That same year he became an American citizen. He died in his see city on April 11, 1842 and is buried in the cathedral there.

FLANAGAN, EDWARD JOSEPH, founder of Boys Town, was born in Roscommon, Ireland on July 13, 1886. He attended seminaries in the U.S., Italy and Austria before ordination for the Archdiocese of Omaha, Neb. in 1912. Though lacking formal training in social work, he opened a hotel for derelict men in 1914. Increasingly convinced that rehabilitation needs the earliest possible start, he abandoned the hotel in 1917 and concentrated on the care of homeless youngsters. In 1922 he founded the present Boys Town on a farm just outside of Omaha. In his later years, this man who insisted that "there is no such thing as a bad boy" was universally recognized as an authority on juvenile delinquency. At the invitation of General Douglas MacArthur he visited post-war Japan and Korea to advise on youth problems there. While on a similar mission to Europe he died in Berlin on May 15, 1948. He is buried at Boys Town.

GIBBONS, JAMES, ninth archbishop of Baltimore, second U.S. cardinal, author of The Faith of Our Fathers, and first chancellor of the Catholic University of America, was born in Baltimore, Md., on July 23, 1834, and was ordained there in 1861. Seven years later he was consecrated bishop of North Carolina and then attended the First Vatican Council as the youngest of its more than seven hundred bishops. He also served as bishop of Richmond (1872-1877) before returning to Baltimore in his 44th year for a 44-year reign as its archbishop. A man of moderate views and gentle manner, he often served as a crucial conciliator in matters affecting both Church and State. President Theodore Roosevelt once described this man of keen patriotism as "the most respected...and useful citizen of our country." His major contribution may well have been his ability to explain the U.S. to the Holy See and Catholicism to the U.S. He died in his see city on March 24, 1921, and is buried in the Old Cathedral there.

HAYES, CARLTON JOSEPH HUNTLEY, historian and diplomat, was born at Afton, N.Y., on May 16, 1882. He received his A.B., M.A. and Ph.D. at Columbia University, and became a Catholic while a student there. After World War I service in the U.S. Army military intelligence, he returned to Columbia as a teacher, eventually becoming Seth Low Professor of History (1935). From 1942 to 1945 he served as U.S. Ambassador to Spain; afterwards he once again returned to Columbia until his retirement in 1950. In the late 20's he helped found the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and was Catholic co-chairman from 1928 until 1946. He was elected president of the American Catholic Historical Association in 1930, and of the American Historical Association in 1945. His voluminous writings included British Social Forces (1913), A Political and Cultural History of Modern Europe (1916, 1932) and Essays on Nationalism (1926). He died in the town of his birth on September 3, 1964.

IRELAND, JOHN, first archbishop of St. Paul, Minn., was born in Burnchurch, Ireland, around September 11, 1838. After seminary studies in France, he was ordained for the diocese of St. Paul on December 22, 1861, and served as a Civil War chaplain for the North. He was consecrated coadjutor bishop of St. Paul on December 21, 1875, and succeeded to the head of the see in 1884. A leading voice at the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore (1884), he encouraged mutual respect between the Catholic Church and the nation's pluralistic democratic society. An eloquent speaker and a tireless writer on questions of national and ecclesiastical policy, he was a defender of the workingman and an advocate of racial justice. As for the latter, he declared: "There is but one solution of the problem, and it is to obliterate absolutely all color line." He designed a kind of shared-time arrangement between his parochial schools and the state government. Along with Cardinal Gibbons, he tried to befriend European immigrants and to speed their Americanization. He died in St. Paul on September 25, 1918 and is buried in the impressive cathedral which he built as his last major project.

JORDAN, ELIZABETH, critic, novelist, playwright and short story writer, was born in Milwaukee on May 9, 1867. She was a reporter for the N.Y. World under Joseph Pulitzer, and then assistant editor for the Sunday World. From 1900 to 1913 she was editor of Harper's Bazaar, and then worked as literary adviser for Harper and Brothers for the next five years. It was in the latter role that she "discovered" Sinclair Lewis. From 1922 until 1945 she was drama critic for the Jesuit weekly, America. The author of two-score works of fiction, she wrote short stories such as Tales of the City Room (1898) and plays such as The Lady from Oklahoma (produced in 1911). Along with Henry James, Henry Van Dyke, William Dean Howells and others, she co-authored the experimental novel, The Whole Family (1907). She published her autobiography, Three Rousing Cheers, in 1935, and died in New York City on February 24, 1947.

KENNEDY, JOHN FITZGERALD, the 35th President of the U.S., the youngest man and the first Catholic to be so elected, was born in Brookline, Mass., on May 29, 1917. After graduation from Harvard (B.S., 1940), he served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. Elected to the House of Representatives from Mass. in 1946, he defeated Henry Cabot Lodge for the U.S. Senate in 1952, and Richard M. Nixon for the presidency in 1960. Highlights of his "thousand days" in the nation's highest office were the ill-starred U.S.-backed invasion of Cuba (1961) and the perilous confrontation with Russia over missile shipments to that same island (1962). He lacked time to achieve many of the social-reform programs of his New Frontier. Important measures such as the Civil Rights Bill were carried through by his successor, Lyndon Johnson. Kennedy died in Dallas, Texas, on November 22, 1963, from an assassin's bullet which struck him while riding in a motorcade at the side of his wife, Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy. He is buried in Arlington National Cemetery, Va., near his brother Senator Robert Kennedy (1925-68), who also fell victim to an assassin's bullet.

LOMBARDI, VINCENT THOMAS, professional football coach, was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., on June 11, 1913, the son of Henry and Matilda (Izzo) Lombardi. He studied law at Fordham University, married Marie Planitz in 1940, and fathered two children, Vincent and Susan. He was assistant coach at the U.S. Military Academy from 1948 to 1954, offensive line coach for the N.Y. Giants from 1954 to 1959, and head coach and/or general manager for the Green Bay (Wisconsin) Packers from 1959 to 1969. During his years with the Packers, they rose from the last-ranking position to win five NFL championships, two AFL-NFL championships and one Western Division championship. In 1967 they became the first team in history to win three straight World Titles. From 1969 to 1970 he was executive vice-president and head coach for the Washington Redskins. Author of the best-selling Run to Daylight, he died on September 3, 1970.

MERTON, THOMAS, Trappist monk, poet and author, was born in Prades, France, on January 31, 1915. Both his parents were artists, his father a New Zealander, his mother an American. After European and American studies in literature, he became a Catholic in 1938 and entered the Trappist monastery in Gethsemane, Ky., three days after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He was then in his 27th year. Twenty-seven years to the day, December 10, 1968, he died by accidental electrocution in Bangkok, Thailand. (The great Protestant theologian, Karl Barth, died on the same day.) His autobiography, The Seven Storey Mountain (1948), made him an international figure. Through the years his many writings reflected and developed his concern with the contemplative vocation, social ideals such as non-violence, and Eastern spirituality. At the time of his death he was probably the most famous monk in the world, and interest in his thought has widened and deepened since that time. His religious name was Father M. Louis.

NEUMANN, BLESSED JOHN NEPOMUCENE, was born in Prachatitz, Bohemia, on March 28, 1811. Having completed seminary studies in his homeland, he arrived in New York with one suit of clothes and one dollar, and was ordained for the New York diocese on June 25, 1836. In 1842 he took vows as a Redemptorist and became the first Redemptorist to be professed in America. In 1852 he was consecrated the fourth bishop of Philadelphia. During his eight years as bishop, more than eighty churches were constructed in his diocese, and parochial schools were organized into a diocesan system, with a twentyfold increase in students. After his death in Philadelphia on January 5, 1860, the fame of his sanctity spread. In 1921 Pope Benedict XV solemnly declared the heroic stature of his virtues. On October 13, 1963, he became the first American bishop to be beatified.

O'CONNOR, MARY FLANNERY, novelist and short-story writer, was born in Savannah, Ga., on March 25, 1925, of a pioneer Georgia Catholic family. She graduated in 1945 from Georgia State College for Women, and later studied creative writing at the University of Iowa (1948). In 1949 the initial attack of an incurable disease brought her home from New York to the family farm in Milledgeville, Georgia. In novels like Wise Blood (1952) and The Violent Bear It Away (1960) and in collections of short stories such as A Good Man Is Hard To Find (1955) and Everything That Rises Must Converge (1965) she revealed herself as a Christian nay-sayer bent on attacking the poses and pieties of a secular age. She thereby tried to make "the distortions of modern life" apparent to those who were "used to seeing them as natural." She died at Milledgeville on August 3, 1964. Her posthumous fame grows from year to year.

P

PRICE, THOMAS FREDERICK, co-founder of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America (Maryknoll), was born in Wilmington, N.C. on August 19, 1860. After seminary studies under the Sulpicians in Baltimore, he was ordained on June 20, 1886, as the first native diocesan priest of the Tar Heel State. In an article published in 1909, he urged that the time was ripe for the founding of an American foreign mission seminary. (Until 1908 the United States itself had been officially considered mission territory.) The following year he and Father James A. Walsh of Boston met to lay the groundwork for the Maryknoll missions. Pope St. Pius X gave the project temporary approval in 1911. Price led the first missionary group to South China in 1918, and died there on September 12 of the next year. He is buried at the Maryknoll headquarters at Ossining, N.Y., with co-founder Bishop Walsh (1867-1936).

QUIGLEY, MARTIN JOSEPH, publisher and editor, was born in Cleveland, Ohio, on May 6, 1890. After studies at Niagara University and the Catholic University, he worked as a newspaper reporter and drama critic (1910-13). Inspired by D. W. Griffith's The Birth of a Nation, he founded the Exhibitors Herald (1915), a pioneer film trade journal. In later years he also published Motion Picture Daily and Motion Pictures Today. In 1930 he conceived and wrote the Motion Picture Production Code, which was adopted by the critically influential Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. In 1955 the Association of Motion Picture Producers called this Code "a major factor in accomplishing the basic purpose of making films acceptable to reasonable minds the world over." Quigley authored Decency in Motion Pictures (1937) and was awarded honorary doctorates in letters from Loyola University in Los Angeles and from Niagara University. He died in New York City on May 4, 1964.

RYAN, ABRAM JOSEPH, priest-poet of the Confederacy, was born in Hagerstown, Md., on February 5, 1838. He was educated in Missouri where he joined the Congregation of the Mission (Vincentians). Ordained at St. Louis in 1860, he was an ardent supporter of the Confederate cause but was unsuccessful in his efforts to be commissioned a military chaplain. Adopted by the Diocese of Nashville in 1864, he nevertheless found occasions to serve as a free-lance chaplain with the armed forces of the South. In 1868 he joined the Savannah Diocese and became editor of The Banner of the South. He was incardinated into the Diocese of Mobile in 1870 and became editor-in-chief of the Morning Star of New Orleans. Poems such as The Conquered Banner and The Sword of Robert Lee quickly won for him the title, Poet of the Confederacy. He died in Louisville on April 22, 1886.

SETON, SAINT ELIZABETH ANN BAYLEY, first native citizen of the U.S. to be approved for canonization, foundress of the American Sisters of Charity, and relative of both Presidents Roosevelt, was born in New York City on August 28, 1774, of notable Episcopal parents. In 1794 she married a wealthy young merchant, William Magee Seton, who died in Italy in 1804, leaving her with five children. Deeply impressed by the kindness and piety of an Italian family, the Filicchi, she was received into the Catholic Church on March 4, 1805. Ostracized by family and friends, she moved to Baltimore in 1808 and opened a school for girls near Old St. Mary's Seminary. The following year she moved its location to Emmitsburg, Md. Baltimore's Archbishop Carroll had already received religious vows from her and given her the title of Mother Seton. Now she adopted a modification of St. Vincent de Paul's Rule for the French Sisters of Charity and proceded to lay the foundations of the American parochial school system. After many personal tragedies she died at Emmitsburg on January 4, 1821 and was buried there. Pope John XXIII beatified her in 1963, and Pope Paul VI presided at her canonization September 14, 1975.

TEKAKWITHA, KATERI, "The Lily of the Mohawks," and first North American Indian candidate for canonization, was born near modern Auriesville, N.Y. around 1656. Her mother was a Christian Algonquin who was taken captive by the Iroquois and made the wife of a pagan Mohawk chief. Upon the death of her entire immediate family from smallpox when she was four, Kateri was taken into an uncle's home. In 1675 she sought instructions from a Jesuit missionary and was baptized by him on Easter Sunday 1676. Her conversion and piety aroused so much opposition that she accepted her pastor's advice and made a two-hundred-mile trek to a Christian Indian village near Montreal. There she took a private vow of chastity a year before her saintly death on April 17, 1680. Her cause for beatification was introduced in Rome on July 11, 1932.

UNCLES, CHARLES RANDOLPH, first Negro priest trained and ordained in the U.S., was born in Baltimore, Md., on November 6, 1859. His parents were Lorenzo Uncles and Anna Maria Buchanan Uncles. After three years of public school teaching in his native city, he entered St. Hyacinthe's College in Canada. In 1888 he began his seminary studies in Baltimore and was ordained by Cardinal Gibbons on December 19, 1891. In the years immediately following, along with five other former Mill Hill Fathers, he became a co-founder of the Josephites (St. Joseph's Society of the Sacred Heart) for mission work in the American Black community. A scholarly man, he taught history and languages at the Josephite Seminary, first in Baltimore (1891-1925), then at Newburgh, N.Y. (1925-33). He died at the latter place on July 24, 1933 and is buried there.

VEROT, JEAN PIERRE AUGUSTIN MARCELLIN, third bishop of Savannah, Ga., and first bishop of St. Augustine, Fla., was born in LePuy, France, on May 23, 1805. After ordination in 1828 he joined the Society of St. Sulpice and was sent to the United States where he did teaching and pastoral work in Maryland. He was consecrated a bishop on April 25, 1858 and served as the vicar apostolic of Florida. He continued this assignment even after he was named bishop of Savannah, July 16, 1861, just after the outbreak of the Civil War. Though in an 1861 sermon he defended the "property rights" of slave owners, in 1866 he rejoiced at the extinction of slavery. At the First Vatican Council, where he was regarded as an enfant terrible, he asked for the condemnation of the theory that Negroes have no souls. He absented himself from the vote on papal infallibility. Earlier that year, on March 11, 1870, he had been appointed the first bishop of St. Augustine, the nation's oldest city. There he died on June 10, during the nation's centennial celebration.

WEIGEL, GUSTAVE, Jesuit theologian and ecumenist, was born in Buffalo, N.Y., on January 15, 1906. Entering the Society of Jesus in 1922, he made his philosophical and theological studies at Woodstock College, Md., and was ordained there in 1933. After receiving his doctorate in theology at the Gregorian University in Rome (1938), he was assigned to the University of Chile for ten years. From 1948 to 1964 he was professor of ecclesiology at Woodstock College. Author of eleven books, he became increasingly involved in the ecumenical movement. He was a consulting member of the Vatican's Secretariat for the Promotion of Christian Unity, and for the first two sessions of the Second Vatican Council was English translator for the non-Catholic observers. Dying between Council sessions the very week that Pope Paul had his historic meeting in Jerusalem with the Ecumenical Patriarch Athenagoras, Father Weigel was by that time probably the most active, influential and esteemed Catholic ecumenist in America. His death occurred literally in the midst of ecumenical activities in New York City on January 3, 1964. He is buried at the old Woodstock College.

YUERGENS, HENRY A., educator, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., on November 18, 1870. He entered the Christian Brothers in 1884, received the name Brother Denis Edward, and spent more than seventy active years as a teacher and administrator. From 1911 until 1917 he was president of LaSalle College in Philadelphia. From 1931 until 1940 he was president of the University of Scranton; during his tenure there the name was changed from St. Thomas College, university status was achieved for it, and its facilities were doubled. He was a co-founder of the Catholic Educational Association of Pennsylvania in 1911, and of the Christian Brothers Education Association in 1936; he served as president of both. From 1940 until 1958 he was inspector general for schools for the Christian Brothers' Middle Atlantic States Province and the Ohio Province. He died at Ammendale, Md., in his 91st year on January 8, 1961.

ZAHM, ALBERT FRANCIS, aeronautical scientist and designer, was born in New Lexington, Ohio, in 1862. His mother, Mary Ellen Braddock, was the grandniece of the major general of that name who played an ill-fated role in the French and Indian War. Zahm taught mathematics and mechanics at the University of Notre Dame (1885-92) and later at the Catholic University (1895-1908). In 1893 and 1900 he was general secretary for the International Conference on Aerial Navigation. From 1916 to 1929 he was director of the Aerodynamical Laboratory of the U.S. Navy. From 1930 to 1946 he held at the Library of Congress the Guggenheim Chair of Aeronautics, a post which was created for him. In his special field of aviation he designed the "Zahm shape;" he also designed and built the first wind tunnel in the U.S. (1901). Winner of the 1925 Laetare Medal from Notre Dame, he was buried in the community cemetery there after his death in Washington on July 23, 1954. His priest brother, John Augustine Zahm (1851-1921), who was also a scientist, served as the U.S. Provincial of the Congregation of the Holy Cross (1898-1906).
